African Rights Corporation

New York

United States of America

The African Rights Corporation in New York is committed to the wellbeing of Africa and its teeming masses most of whom are disfranchised. Directing communities.

(1) Rural populations are already feeling the presence of partnering agencies. (2) Women in suburban areas are being empowered to work with their hands. (3) Entrepreneurship Center is deployed to equip youths to meet everyday service demands. (4) Community awareness and activism is in top gear sensitizing all and sundry. (5) Feasibility studies are continuous albeit noiselessly to circumscribe local affairs.

Re-sequencing of Africa's status being planned to return Africa to its former glory.

Africa's success in the global market rests on deepening regional integration to scale up supply capacity and build regional value chains. The establishment of the Africa Continental Free Trade Agreement (AfCFTA) presents opportunities to boost intra-African trade, strengthen the complementarities of production and exports, create employment, and limit the impact of commodity price volatility on the participants. It also provides for increased resilience to global shocks, promotes the exchange of a more diverse set of goods, and contributes to reducing conflicts.

Dr. Chima Nwosu is the IIAS Internace to the above program.

IIAS was established in June 2013 to serve doctoral and other social science researchers. Since then, it has helped several scholars across the globe. It collaborates with other entities such as the Journal of Functional Education, Global Peace Missions (NGO), Emmanuel University, and Center for Academic Research and Educational Sustainability among others. Through the instrumentality of these collaborating entities, Fellows of IIAS have found platforms to express their talents and global presence.

AFRICAN FREE CONTINENTAL TRADE AREA

AfCFTA has the ultimate goal of increasing the ease of trade and investment across African borders, as well as eliminating tariffs on intra-African trade, reducing unemployment, increasing infrastructure development and creating a more competitive and sustainable environment for cross-border trade. However, the continent's massive gaps in infrastructure, especially its utilities and transport infrastructure, have hampered the ability of African countries to trade

CHAMPIONS OF AFRICAN TRADE

Champions of African Trade is a private sector development initiative established to help SMEs to participate in African trade. The aim is to raise awareness of the barriers that SMEs face in doing business across borders, highlight the experiences and success stories of those SMEs that are already trading, facilitate access to critical information, and raise skills among SMEs to enable them to diversify export markets.

Champions of Africa Trade will develop the capacity of SMEs in Africa through access to markets; technology; human resources; financing; and information.

GENDER AND TRADE

Women play a crucial role in sustainable economic growth and development, however the link between trade and gender is not fully understood by the trade community. There is a paucity of gender-disaggregated data on women and trade, and ambiguity remains about why and how gender equality can be addressed through all elements of trade

International trade and investment are engines of economic growth for both developing and developed countries, and that improving women's access to opportunities and removing barriers to their participation in national and international economies contributes to sustainable economic development

INCREASING WOMEN'S PARTICIPATION IN TRADE

In coordination with relevant international organizations ,we will explore and develop, among others, the following themes related to trade and the economic empowerment of women:

- The promotion of female entrepreneurship and trade;
- The identification of barriers that limit women's participation in trade;
- The promotion of financial inclusion as well as the access to trade financing and financial assistance for women traders;
- The enhancement of women entrepreneurs' participation in public procurement markets;
- The impact of trade facilitation in providing equal access and opportunities for women entrepreneurs;
